- ❖ Companies all around the world are realizing that they need to develop an internal Lean Sensei (Lean Coach) who can champion various lean initiatives and implement lean projects, or risk losing business to competitors.
- ❖ More importantly, these Lean Champions must be capable of delivering true time-saving, cost-saving projects that make a difference to the “bottom-line”. In other words, they must be implementers first, teachers second.
- ❖ In order to advance the level of skills well beyond the current Greenbelts (who are capable of teaching basic lean materials and implement simple lean programs), Blackbelt program is available. The Blackbelt brings a new level of commitment and discipline to Lean Champions through demonstrated leadership in leading, managing, and implementing lean projects.
- ❖ The primary focus of the Blackbelt Certification is provide advanced level of lean training that include lean strategy, lean assessment, facilitation, project management, supply chain and others.
- ❖ Blackbelt program provides opportunities to perform advanced Kaizen Blitz that are not typically taught or offered through other lean programs.
- ❖ In addition, every Blackbelt will take a trip to Japan – the birthplace of Toyota Way – to visit Toyota and their suppliers to further enhance the knowledge of lean strategy and lean culture.
